THE COUNCIL OF THE EUROPEAN UNION

General considerations

(3) RECALLING the Council Conclusions of 22 October 2013 on the added value of macroregional strategies³, and that the Council recommended when considering the creation of new macro-regional strategies to ensure that: a) there are particular needs of strategic importance for the macro-regions for improved high level cooperation in solving common challenges as well as using opportunities, b) involvement of the EU is appropriate and existing EU horizontal policies would be reinforced, c) the appraisal of the added value at the EU and macro-regional level is evidence-based, d) there is clearly expressed political will from both the Member States concerned and their involved regions for such an approach;

COM (2015) 366 final, Communication from the Commission to the European Parliament, the Council, the European Economic and Social Committee and the Committee of the Regions concerning a European Union Strategy for the Alpine Region.

- (4) RECALLING the Council Conclusions of 21 October 2014 on the governance of macroregional strategies⁴;
- (5) RECOGNISING the potential of macro-regional strategies, as an integrated framework relating to Member States and non-EU countries in the same geographical area in order to address common challenges and to benefit from strengthened cooperation, to contribute to Treaty-based objectives including economic, social and territorial cohesion of the EU, therefore supporting the achievement of the Europe 2020 Strategy objectives and in particular the promotion of growth and jobs;
- (6) NOTING in particular that existing and future macro-regional strategies provide an important instrument to pursue the objective of territorial cohesion in the areas concerned, because of their integrated and place-based approach;
- (7) STRESSING that macro-regional strategies are based on the principles of no new EU funds, no additional EU formal structures and no new EU legislation, and are an instrument for optimal use of existing financial resources, better use of existing institutions and better implementation of existing legislation;
- (8) REITERATING the need for coordination between relevant EU policies as well as between EU and national, regional and local policies having an impact on territorial cohesion, respecting the principle of subsidiarity and proportionality;
- (9) STRESSING the need for macro-regional strategies to be result-oriented, promote concrete achievements and ensure accountability;

Doc. 13374/14.

The EU Strategy for the Alpine Region

- (10) RECALLS that the Strategy will affect around 80 million people living in 48 regions in seven States, of which five are EU Member States (Austria, France, Germany, Italy and Slovenia) and two are non-EU countries (Liechtenstein and Switzerland);
- (11) ENDORSES the Strategy, as set out by the Commission's communication, and TAKES NOTE of the annexed Action Plan elaborated by the Commission, in cooperation with Member States, and on the basis of a public consultation with the participating States and Regions, involving all relevant partners and stakeholders at national, regional and local level;
- (12) RECOGNISES the common challenges and the particular needs of strategic importance of the territories concerned as identified in the Strategy. RECOMMENDS that the EUSALP enhances solidarities and synergies between mountainous and, non-mountainous areas, urban and rural areas and peripheral regions surrounding the Alps. ACKNOWLEDGES its added value in line with the Council Conclusions of 22 October 2013 on the added value of macroregional strategies⁵;
- (13) WELCOMES the active cooperation of all interested international, national and regional and local organisations and communities in areas where actions of mutual interest can be identified, taking into account the initiatives of the civil society; STRESSES that the Strategy is the expression of a clear political will, and the result of a long political, administrative and technical process among the seven States and 48 Regions participating in the Strategy, and, TAKING NOTE that the macro-regional strategies are dynamic processes, ACKNOWLEDGES that the Strategy remains open to future developments;
- (14) APPRECIATES that the Strategy addresses the challenges of the Alpine Region by selecting 3 Thematic Policy Areas focusing on topics with the highest macro-regional relevance, such as 1) economic growth and innovation, 2) mobility and connectivity and 3) environment and energy, as well as Governance and institutional capacity as a cross-cutting policy area;

- (15) RECOGNISES, as described in the Action Plan of the Strategy, the challenges of the Alpine Region facing demographic trends, characterised particularly by the combined effects of ageing, low population density in the mountain areas and new migration models, the high vulnerability to climate change and its foreseeable effects on the environment, biodiversity and the living conditions of its inhabitants;
- (16) STRESSES that the Alpine Region, due to its central location in Europe, is of interest to all EU Member States for a number of EU policies, in particular in the following fields:
 - a. the Region, which comprises some of the most dynamic European regions, can build on its high competitiveness and enhance the already existing opportunities, such as its innovation capacity or its strong potential in tourism, based on the preservation and valorisation of cultural and natural heritage, to increase employment;
 - improving sustainable transport infrastructure, its intermodal connectivity and interoperability in the region with a clear trend to reduce emissions, hence supporting a balanced development between North and South as well as East and West;
 - c. the safeguarding of the alpine biodiversity by preserving its integrity and its ecological connectivity. Actions and projects to be implemented under this Strategy should contribute towards the targets to be agreed at COP21, including supporting the shift towards a low-carbon economy as well as promoting climate change mitigation and adaptation, efficient disaster risk management including prevention.
- (17) UNDERLINES the importance of ensuring mutually beneficial interaction between the core area and the metropolises with regard to the need to establish sustainable and balanced models in the field of energy as well as of preserving and valorising natural resources in view of the particular vulnerability of the environment of the Alpine Region;
- (18) REITERATES that the Strategy is financially neutral, in the sense that, through its coordinated approach, it aims at a more efficient and effective use of existing instruments and funds;

- (19) ACKNOWLEDGES that the Strategy builds on:
 - d. long experience of a large number of cooperation structures already operating in the area such as: Alpine Convention⁶, Alpine Space INTERREG Programme, and other ad hoc structures;
 - e. the lessons learnt from the existing macro-regional strategies: need to focus on a limited number of challenges and/or opportunities, and to secure ownership, commitment and leadership from the participating States, regional and local authorities, need to establish, at an early stage, a sound governance and management system with a clear division of tasks and roles;
 - f. the Grenoble "Political resolution towards a European Union Strategy for the Alpine region" of 18 October 2013, stressing the joint will of the States and Regions of the Alpine region to support the elaboration of a macro-region for the Alpine region;
 - g. the "Milan Declaration of the Alpine States and Regions" of 1 December 2014, emphasising the importance of the future EUSALP in constituting a tailor-made contribution to the growth of the region in line with Europe 2020 Strategy objectives and building on its cultural and natural heritage;
 - h. the extensive public online consultation from July to October 2014 with close to 400 contributions and its outcomes.
- (20) UNDERLINES that the timing of the Strategy's launch coincides with the start of the implementation of the European Structural Investment Funds 2014-2020 programming period, which helps mobilising relevant policies and programmes in support of the Strategy; RECALLS that the 2014-2020 legislative package paves the way for better embedding macroregional strategies in the programming and implementation of relevant EU policies where appropriate;

_

The Alpine Convention is an international treaty, entered into force in 1995 for the sustainable development and the protection of the Alps, ratified by the alpine countries (Austria, France, Germany, Italy, Liechtenstein, Monaco, Slovenia and Switzerland) and the European Union.

Internal Governance

The participating States and Regions put all efforts in using the potential of the existing 2014-2020 financial framework.";

(22) INVITES the Commission to:

- a. keep playing a leading role in strategic coordination of the Strategy, where its involvement brings a clear added value, in partnership with the participating States, regional and local authorities, and in accordance with the subsidiarity and proportionality principles; and ensure that the Strategy is taken into account in relevant EU policy initiatives and programme planning;
